Landscape Competition

The 47 projects in this book are classified into five parts: square landscapes, park landscapes, waterfront landscapes, public building landscapes and residential landscapes, providing readers with an overview of design principles and the tendency of urban landscape development. It is not only a collection of recent design proposals for landscape worldwide; rather, features are addressed in details. What landscape designers are pursuing is a better living environment and higher living quality. Moreover, landscape design is closely related to the development of human beings and sustainability.
